To Whom It May Concern:

I would say that you have to agree with me there are certain people in our lives that just automatically enhance the quality of our day-to-day operations while at the workplace. For me, I have a few, but Max of National Cleaners of Reading, PA sticks out the most.

We have been doing business with National Cleaners for several years and the service they have offered our company has met all of our expectations and then some. Personally, Max has taken our challenges- whatever they may be, and pleasantly turned them around to suit our needs. And he is about as approachable, friendly and most of all honest as you would want and expect!

Sometimes when you have fantastic experiences — especially in today's times — you just can't help but tell others about it. If you are in the market for a service such as theirs, I hope you'll take the time to speak to Max. He is a true professional who holds every personal conversation in the highest regard.

Sincerely yours,

Wendy Drago
